CONFERENCE OPENING & KEYNOTE SPEAKER

(re)Discovering Happiness at Work

Jennifer Moss

We've come through a crisis and for better or worse – it changed us. We gained plenty of skills – how to pivot on the fly, work from anywhere, adopt new tech, build resiliency. We might be feeling hopeful, but we have a long way to go – Gallup says that less than 1 in 4 people are thriving at work.

If the dust is settling and our well-being is (re)booting in our personal lives, why does work still feel so “meh”? We feel less confident, less effective, less connected – blame that on chronic stress – but we're also hungry for purpose and meaning. We want our spark back!

In her newest keynote offering (re)Discovering Happiness at Work, award-winning author and journalist, Jennifer Moss, will engage you with novel ways to bring that lost sense of purpose back to work and life. With the latest behavioral and economic sciences research, Jennifer explains what makes us want to show up at work and how to tear down the psychological barriers that are holding us back. This is a high energy, future-focused, entertaining, data-backed discussion. It will have you nodding, “you get me,” while feeling like, “I can do this!”

We've changed and so has our relationship with work. To make it the best it can be, we must come together – leaders and teams – to (re) Discover Happiness at Work.

10:00 – 10:30 a.m.

The panelists will begin by contrasting DB and DC investing across a few key dimensions including investment horizon, governance, accumulation and decumulation phases, information asymmetry, and investment skill. Next, given the ubiquitous nature of target date strategies within DC plans, the speakers will debate the benefits and shortcomings of these strategies. Building on these insights, the panel will then move to how best to complement DB benefits with DC savings. The session will provide practical recommendations for improving or replacing target date funds (TDFs) to better suit the unique needs of government plan participants.
